

SCMP

8 Dec 2018

How ex-Portuguese soldier learned to cook and opened Antonio's restaurant in Macau

Antonio Coelho learned about Portuguese food from eating it – so often, he taught himself to cook and became a chef; he opened his Macau restaurant in 2007

At the age of 70 he's still in the kitchen at Antonio's, which serves Portuguese classics and has earned a mention in the Michelin Guide

PUBLISHED : Saturday, 08 December, 2018, 2:17pm

Bernice Chan

bernice.chan@scmp.com

Antonio Coelho is the chef and owner of Antonio's, a three-storey restaurant in Macau's Taipa Village. Dressed in his short-sleeved chef jacket, covered with medals, Coelho is chatting with regular customers and greeting new ones.

<https://www.scmp.com/lifestyle/food-drink/article/2176701/how-ex-portuguese-soldier-learned-cook-and-now-owns-michelin>